HIGHER TELEPHONE RATES.

Will the People Submit—Small Company Before It gave us Good Service at Popular Cost.

The people sometimes cast their bread upon the waters and it invariably returns not. This is what the people of Marion did when they granted for a paltry few hundred dollars a franchise for twenty years to the Central Home Telephone Company.

The small company which controlled before it, gave us good service at popular cost and the absorbing company held to this practice for a time. To have thrust the knife into the people's pocket-book too far by immediately raising rates would have risked its own undoing, and the Central Home Telephone Company knew this full well. In granting this franchise, the people knowing the ferocity of the wolf (the Cumberland) confided too far in the hound (the Central) who soon turned his fangs against them; a fact the people realize only too well today. The Central Home Co., Incorporated, of Delaware, is in fact a competing trust which step by step has gained the confidence of the people by espousing their cause; now it begins to turn with full force against them saying (pointing to the Cumberland) "It would treat you worse."

The lack of vigilance in granting the charter need not be repeated now. If the servants of the people failed to exercise sufficient legal care to protect their needs, the people can now, themselves protect their rights. If they accede to a fifty per cent. increase in rates now, it is but a big step toward the maximum—will not the maximum rate be forced on them speedily?

The Marion Exchange has grown rapidly since the day Mr. Alexander first gave the people of this city, this great modern convenience. At present, more than 250 families have phones in their homes and more than fifty stores and offices may answer the phone bell.

The company claims an investment of $40,000. Their taxes as shown by the Sheriff's book for 1907 amount to $27.00 based on a value of $3,000 given in. If the company's claims are true, certainly the County and City officials have a duty to fulfill—much back taxes must be paid—the people demand it.

The company claims their investment does not pay. For years, the small companies have been satisfied, but suddenly, the soulless company to which they have altered—fortified by the invaluable gift of the people—discovers it has been ROBBING ITSELF, words in common parlance mean: we can rob the half asleep people just a little more, without their knowing it.

They can make their investment more profitable without increasing rates, even a blind man can see. When the little company had 200 subscribers, four people served their wants. With 300 subscribers, without better service, eight additional are required to do where it only takes two. Neptunism seems to go hand in hand with large corporations. But this is the company's, not the people's outlook.

The telephone when not abused is one of the greatest boons man's inventive genius has given to man. In the home, it saves the wife, and mother, many unnecessary steps and throws a certain protection about them that nothing else can. In business and office, it facilitates much.

But it has its disadvantages also. In the home, it permits of many lengthy and useless conversations often between those who should not meet in the business of Marion, opposing the advantages offered, is decidedly malevolent effect. The streets of city are dull but for idlers, and the shoppers are not seen on them. The housewife of the city and country seldom visit a store, but telephones for what she needs. The delivery boy brings the goods to the door and is informed she will pay latter. Vast credit accounts pile up, of which the husband is not aware. The merchant carries the housekeeper and the jobber the merchant, and soon a sheriff's notice is on the merchant's door. And for these things will the people of Marion pay higher telephone rates?

Will the people submit? Let them awaken from their lethargy and one and all say: "We will no longer be outdone!" "We cannot afford higher rates in our homes; our business certainly will not warrant it. More than one hundred subscribers have ordered their telephones removed, including all the more important businesses. Will not each and all of you do likewise? It is only by continued and united action that the people can gain their well taken stand. Just say to the company: "You can choose between giving us the telephone at the present rates or let your elaborate system stand idle." Those who will not do this are COWARDS to their own and to their neighbors interests. Let us all have our telephones removed and the Central Home Telephone Company will realize that people need telephones, what is more important to the telephone baron—HE CAN NOT DO WITHOUT THE PEOPLE.—"An Old Friend and Patron of the Central Home Telephone Company."

JAKE McDOWELL MOBBED

at Dixon Sunday Morning at Two O'clock Carried to Outskirts of City and Shot to Death.

Dixon, Ky., May 31.—About 2 o'clock Sunday morning Thomas S. Page, jailer of this county was awakened by a noise in the guard room of the jail, where he was sleeping, and found himself surrounded by masked men, two of whom had him covered with guns. They ordered him to open the jail and deliver to them Jake McDowell, a negro. He at once began to remonstrate, but the guns were placed at his breast and he was told to obey or take the consequences. Being powerless to offer resistance, he opened the doors, when two of the men went in and dragged the sleeping negro from his bed. Having secured their man they quietly departed.

Shortly after the mob had left several shots were heard on the Providence road. As soon as possible the jailer notified the sheriff and other officers of what had occurred. In the meantime a young son of the jailer and a Mr. Herron, while following the mob, found the dead body of the negro lying in the public road with three bullet wounds thru it. The body was just outside the corporate limits of the town, and not more than a half mile from the jail.

The crime for which McDowell was dealt such terrible punishment was the shooting by him on March 14 of Smith Childers, who was Deputy Marshall of Providence. Childers has so far recovered that he is able to walk about, and the case against McDowell had been set for trial at the coming July term of court.

On the night McDowell was arrested a mob came to take him, but he had been hurried away to Henderson but excitement had quieted down, and it was thought safe to return him at Dixon. This is the first time "Judge Lynch" has dealt summary justice in this county, and only one legal execution is recorded in the history of the county—that of a negro slave who was hanged for murder in 1865.

Mrs. T. S. Shaw of Cadiz, who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. R. L. Davis, left Saturday for her home.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE BURLEY TOBACCO SOCIETY:

The Executive Board of the Burley Tobacco Society recommends that no member of the Society shall sell his ware-house receipts or transfer his tobacco to any one:

First--Because our tobacco is selling rapidly; we have at this date sold at marked prices 24,000 hhd. out of the 52,000 hhd.

Second--Because we have little tobacco left of grade below 16 to 30 cents.

Third--Because the 1907 will grade much higher than the 1906.

Fourth--Because the 1908 crop has been eliminated beyond our highest expectation.

This advice is given to protect those who may not be informed.

JOHN JANZ IS CAPTURED.

Slayer of His Wife in Evansville Ind. Tolls Of The Law.—Makes Confession.

Evansville, Ind., May 30.—John Janz, the slayer of his wife, Belle Janz, by throat cutting, made a confession of the horrifying details of the crime this morning at 10 o'clock. He was arrested at the home of sister, Mrs. Moore, at Henderson, while sleeping there last night, by Patrolman Russell Knight and was brought to Evansville on the morning boat. The fiend was calm and unruffled about the murder, telling the details without a tremor in his voice.

The Recital given last Tuesday evening by Misses Archibald and Wadlington assisted by Miss Lucile Nunn was a very delightful entertainment. Miss Archibald, whose home is in Nava Scotia, reflected in face and voice the rich beauty of her native land. Her selections were very high class and perfectly rendered. "The village singer" was especially fine. Miss Wadlington captivated the audience with her dramatic rendition of "The Hunter." Miss Nunn's selections were rendered in her usual pleasing style. Should the young ladies again visit Marion they will be assured of a large audience.

BIG KICK COMING

From The Patrons of the Central Home Telephone Company of Louisville.

The Central Telephone Co., of Louisville; which owns most of the exchanges between Louisville and Memphis, as well as the long distance line between those two places is threatening to raise the rate at Providence. Marion and Salem 50 per cent per month for the use of phone, and at some places even more. And also threatening to raise our exchange man here Mr. T. D. Presnell to $40.00 per month rent, for the use of the long distant line connected with his local exchange. The people that use the Salem exchange are "kicking" vigorously about the proposed raise. The company threatens to take its lines out of the county if the people will not stand the raise. Mr. Presnell thinks it best for the people of the county to stand pat, and the lines be taken out. He, for one, does not propose to stand any raise. Mr. Presnell is of the opinion that if the Central lines are removed it will cause the independent companies of the county to extend their lines, connect with each other and eventually bring about a better system than we now have without a change in the present rates. We admire the stand taken by Mr. Presnell and the patrons of the Salem exchange in resisting the proposed raise. Mr. Presnell is always on the side of his patrons, always improving his lines and giving the best service possible. He is now establishing an exchange in the Panhandle to be known as Garland and will have it ready for business in a few days.—Livingston Banner.

The graduating class of "St. Vincent" this year contains the name of Miss Mary Orville Spener, of Morganfield who is well known to our young people, she having visited Miss Ina Price, on several occasions. Miss Spener is as bright as she is beautiful and her deportment on the occasion of the commencement will do her honor and credit.

Mrs. Phillip Deboe and daughter Miss Mendoza left Tuesday for Beebe, Ark., to visit relatives for several weeks.

ERROR CORRECTED.

No Night Riders Arrested Near Salem Livingston County, as Reported From Smithland.

Salem, Ky., May 23.—I notice in the issue of your paper of the 20th an item from Smithland, Ky., stating that some night riders had been arrested near Salem, Ky. As a citizen of Salem I desire to say that the statement is untrue; that you were wrongfully informed by your Smithland correspondent. There has never been a night rider in the Salem precinct, and no one in this precinct has ever been charged with night riding. The fact is this one of the most peaceable, law-abiding precincts in the State of Kentucky. There has not been an indictment found against any citizen on a charge of felony in this precinct in 20 years. The people of Salem precinct work hard and attend strictly to their own business. We are prompt to attend all religious services, such as church, Sabbath School and prayer meeting every Wednesday night. We serve the Lord, love our wives and vote the straight Democratic ticket.—Livingston Banner. C. R. STEVENS.

GENERAL STEPHEN D. LEE

Head of Confederate Veterans Passes Away at Vicksburg, Miss., over-Exertion Causes Fatal Illness.

New Orleans, May 28.—A special to the Picayune from Vicksburg, Miss., says:

General Stephens D. Lee, commander-in-chief of the United States Confederate Confederate Veterans, and one of the last three surviving lieutenant generals of the confederacy died here today at the residence of Capt. W. T. Rigby.

Over-exertion last Thursday in the ceremonies attendant upon the reunion of Iowa and Wisconsin veterans of the G. A. R. at Vicksburg, brought about Gen. Lee's illness.

Following the reception of the Northern visitors, in which General Lee took a leading part, he suffered an attack of acute indigestion, but later rallied and during the past week showed much improvement. Yesterday afternoon he again collapsed and grew gradually weaker until death relieved his sufferings shortly after six o'clock this morning.

At the time of his death, although not the ranking officer of the Confederate Veterans, Gen. Lee was commander-in-chief. Lieut. Gen. A. P. Stewart, of Chattanooga, is ranking officer, but on account of his infirmities he has not taken an active part in the affairs of the organization for many years.

Gen. Lee was one of the South Carolina Lees. He was born in that state in 1833. He received his appointment to the U. S. military academy at West Point and graduated at that institution, receiving his commission in the artillery.

At the outbreak of the civil war, Gen. Lee resigned his commission in the U. S. army and entered the Confederacy. He served with the Confederate army in Virginia until after the battle of Antietam, when he was made a brigadier general and sent to Vicksburg.

Gen. Lee played a prominent part in the siege of Vicksburg and following the fall of the city was taken prisoner. He was later exchanged and promoted to the rank of major general and ordered to the Southwest. He was subsequently assigned to the army of Tennessee with the rank of lieutenant general and served up to the close of the hostilities. At the close of the war general Lee devoted himself to the education of Southern youth as president of the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College.

On the death of Gen. John B. Gordon, Gen. Lee was unanimously chosen commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans and was always the most conspicuous figure at the annual reunions of that organization. Just before his death he was making preparations for the reunion June 8th at Birmingham and had already completed the task of assigning commanders and sponsors for those positions which are appointive on such occasions.

Gen. Lee held under the United States Government the office of commissioner of Vicksburg Military Park. It was in this park that several handsome monuments were unveiled by the Iowa and Wisconsin veterans last Thursday.

Gen. Lee's home was at Columbus Miss., and the body will probably be taken there for interment.

Dragnet Hollowell Verdict.

The verdict at Paducah in the Hollowell case has been followed by intense bitterness and widespread uneasiness. In making up its verdict the jury did not attempt to discriminate between good and bad alibis and the defendant themselves did not try to help those wrongfully accused. The result was some of the men were caught in the dragnet who could hardly have been guilty of the crime charged to them. Men of mature age, prominent in church work and of high social standing were placed upon the same plane as the young men charged with night riding in Crittenden and other counties. And the worst of it is that these innocent men must bear the burden and lose the accumulations of a life-time for other people's crimes. The manner in which this case, involving the fortunes of 28 citizens, was railroaded in two days to conviction, almost takes one's breath away; and with perhaps one hundred other such cases in prospect it arouses a feeling of pity in the hardest of hearts for good men who have been led, driven or dragged into such trouble. And when it is understood that every man mulcted in the federal court is at once marked for criminal prosecution. It is hard to tell where the end will be. I have retired.

Would Tap Vesuvius.

Should the volcanic vent, or chimney, of Vesuvius become blocked, write Signor Coartino, in a recently published pamphlet, the danger of an explosion becomes very great, and to afford an outlet for the molten mass of rock, he proposes to bore a tunnel at the base of the mountain to carry the lava into the sea. He also points out the possibility of leading the lava into moulds, so as to form it into blocks for building quays, breakwaters, etc., and smaller slabs for paving the streets of Naples, such as are now obtained from the cooled lava.

Killed By Lightning

Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock, Joe May was killed by lightning, while in his crib shucking corn. He was sitting on a barrel and his little daughter standing within two or three feet of him, when the bolt came thru the roof of the crib, struck him on the head, tore a hole in his hat did not break the skin on the body, but tore two of his toes off. He was instantly killed, and not withstanding the fact the little girl was standing so close to him she was not even shocked.—Benton Tribune Democrat.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive Kidneys, overcoming backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary Trouble of all kinds, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

of July was 66 7-8.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clear the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of Bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons. The Scranton Pa. Times was first to print this remarkable prescription in October, 1906, since when all the leading newspapers of New York, Boston Philadelphia, Pittsburg and other cities have made many announcements of it to their readers.

P. W. Champion, Meehanic, living on Salem St., Marion Ky., says: "Kidney disease had reduced my health and strength until I scarcely expected to see a well day again. I suffered intensely from pain in my loin, and my family physician diagnosed my case as kidney stones and gave me some medicine to dissolve them, but the symptoms only seemed to be intensified. About this time when in despair, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Haynes & Taylor's drug store. After a short use I began to pass the secretion copiously and two kidney stones passed from me which were nearly one-half inch long. After this the terrible pains began to subside and I fell into a sound sleep which lasted for twelve hours. From that time on my health improved rapidly, the pains in my back ceased, the kidney secretions became regular and I began to feel like myself again. My friends here in Marion marvel at my case. It took eight boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills to bring a complete cure in my case, but I owe my health, in fact my life, to their curative powers."

The Bible a
Universal Book

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.,
Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's)
Church, Chicago.

The Bible is not intended exclusively for Christians. The word "Christian" occurs in it only three times. The reading of it makes Christians, and Christians get most out of it, for they believe, love and study its pages. But the Bible is for the wicked as well as for the good. Its law, as Paul declares, is for evildoers, while its Gospel is for all who will accept it.

If you would trace the history of the material universe, you may have any theory of evolution or mutation, but you will come at last to a point where you need and must have the first words of Genesis: "In the beginning God." If you study the history of nations and would trace them to their origin and early developments, you cannot do without the Bible. If you would know the history of jurisprudence and would be a well-equipped lawyer or judge, you must study the Bible, for it contains the foundation of law and all civilized nations.

History of Literature.

If you would study the history of literature you must know your Bible, for hundreds of thousands of volumes in our great libraries were written because the Bible exists. Theology which is the science of God, the greatest science in the world, is unintelligible without the Bible; and archaeology, that fascinating science, which with pick and shovel has unearthed the buried treasures of Egypt and Assyria, is inexplicable without the Bible. The poet's corner cannot be appreciated without a knowledge of the Bible. It will be conceded by all lovers of poetry that among the greatest English-speaking poets are Shakespeare, Tennyson, Longfellow and Browning, and a knowledge of the Bible is absolutely essential to an understanding of any one of them. Their poems with Biblical allusions, Milton and much of Byron are sealed books to the man ignorant of the Bible. Indeed, if you would write poetry, you cannot become great if you ignore the great thoughts about God, eternity, life, love and immortality which the Bible contains. Take out of English literature the classic books that demand a knowledge of the Bible for their proper appreciation, and you have blotted the sun out of our literary sky.

The History of Art.

Would you study the history of art in sculpture and painting, you must be acquainted with the Bible, for the best paintings of the old masters and the finest statues were inspired for the most part by scenes and ideals drawn from the Bible. You must remain ignorant of the genius of Raphael and Michelangelo if you refuse to know the Bible, for the scenes and characters depicted with brush and chisel were Biblical. The paintings of Dore, Tissot and Sargent, modern master artists, cannot be understood without a knowledge of the Bible. The great musicians, whose masterpieces have thrilled the souls of millions, cannot be interpreted and appreciated without a knowledge of the Bible. Handel's oratorios of the "Messiah," "Esther," "Saul," "Joshua," "Jephtha" and "Israel in Egypt," all of their masterpieces of musical composition, cannot be understood without a knowledge of the Bible. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and Beethoven's "Mount of Olives" are enigmas without Biblical knowledge.

History of Education.

If you would know the history of education, from the little country schoolhouse to the great university, you cannot ignore the Bible, for these schools and universities were founded by men who read their Bibles and drank from its pages the love of knowledge as well as of virtue and religion. The Pilgrims and Puritans of New England built first the church and then the schoolhouse. Next came the college and the university.

It's Christ Universal.

He is "the Son of Man." There is something exceedingly emphatic in that expression. "Son of Man," writes Frederick W. Robertson; "our Master is not called the Son of Mary, but as if the blood of the whole human race were in his veins. He calls himself the Son of Man. He was not the Asiatic. He was not the European. He was not the Jew. He was not the type of that century stamped with its peculiarities. He was not the mechanic. He was not the aristocrat. But he was the man." No one could mistake Mohammed for such a "Son of Man." He was a son of Arabia, and nothing more. The Koran is, therefore, a sectarian book, and Mohammedanism is a cruelly sectarian. Buddha was a son of India, and nothing more. No one could mistake him for a "Son of Man." His writings are, therefore, sectarian. They are not adapted to the occidental mind. Confucius was a son of China, and nothing more. His writings are therefore sectarian in their national narrowness. Zoroaster was just a son of Persia. Only Christ is the universal Man.

HOW TELEGRAPHERS

SAVED VICKSBURG

A True Story of the Civil War

By DAVID J. WALTON

Copyright, 1908, by C. N. Lurie

HERE was a sound of revelry by night in Vicksburg, the famous Confederate stronghold. It was Christmas eve in 1862. The light, to continue the apt Byronic quotation, "shone o'er fair women and brave men." The men were Confederate officers. The women were the beautiful belles of the Mississippi city. For many weeks General Grant, the enemy, had maneuvered at the outer gates. Though he had retired temporarily, it was but to devise and execute new plans for taking the city. By reducing Vicksburg the Union forces would control the Mississippi to the sea, cutting the Confederacy in twain. The importance of holding this position was paramount in the Confederate cause.

Christmas is Christmas, whether in war or in peace. Folk women and brave men will dance tonight, whatever may befall tomorrow. General Martin L. Smith, temporarily in command, was a central figure at the ball. Another officer present, unmarried, handsome, chivalrous, daring, was General Stephen D. Lee, only twenty-nine years of age and a noted leader.

Shortly after midnight—the beginning of Christmas day—a muddy, dragged, uncouth soldier in gray burst suddenly into the ballroom. The intruder rushed between the waiting couples, who shrank from his muddy boots. Sticking straight up to General Smith, he saluted.

"Well, sir, what do you want?" the general inquired somewhat angrily, while the startled dancers paused and the merry music continued.

"General, I have to report," said the intruder, "that sixty-six gunboats and transports have passed Lake Providence, and more are still passing."

General Smith turned very pale. A moment later he cried in a loud voice: "This ball is at an end! The enemy is coming down the river. All non-combatants must leave the city!"

Then the commander turned to the bearer of this important news, thanked him for the service and apologized for his harsh reception. On Christmas day General Lee moved out of Vicksburg with six regiments of infantry and two batteries to check General Sherman in his landing on the Yazoo river, thirteen miles distant. General Lee occupied the bluffs and other high ground along a line of ten miles. There, on the three days following Christmas, was much bloody skirmishing; and on the 29th was fought the decisive battle of Chickasaw Bayou (or Bluffs, as some authorities call it). Lee defeated Sherman, who finally assailed his well-placed forces, and the northern general abandoned his attempt to get into Vicksburg. Thus the city was saved to the Confederacy for more than six months.

The man in muddy boots and dripping clothes who broke up the ball and brought about the sanguinary conflict at Chickasaw Bayou, a brilliant Confederate victory, was Philip H. Fall, a soldier detailed as a telegraph operator. Lee S. Daniel, another Confederate telegrapher, had co-operated with him in saving Vicksburg. The details of this important service, furnishing one of the most romantic stories of the war between the states, have been supplied recently by General Lee himself, the only surviving lieutenant general of the south.

Telegraphers were scarce in the south when the war began. Most of the operators were northerners and went home. When young Daniel and Fall enlisted at Vicksburg the discovery that they could handle the Morse key and code caused them to be detailed for telegraphing. Horace B. Tibbotts, a rich planter in Louisiana, owned a private telegraph line, running from his estate a few miles south of Lake Providence to De So-

"GUNBOAT" SAID DANIEL.

De Soto. Daniel was instructed to keep a strict watch of the river, which by the fall of Memphis had been opened to Federal gunboats down to the vicinity of Vicksburg. He was to report to Fall, who kept a skiff in which to row across to Vicksburg. At night a red light in the bow of the skiff protected him from being fired upon by the Confederate batteries on the heights of Vicksburg.

Early in December General Grant had ordered General Sherman to assemble at Memphis a large force of men and munitions, proceed on transports down the river under convoy of Admiral David D. Porter's gunboats and capture Vicksburg. General Sherman's plan was to disembark up the Yazoo river, which empties into the Mississippi a few miles above Vicksburg, and attack the city from the rear. He had about 30,000 men and strong artillery, in addition to Admiral Porter's flotilla of gunboats.

At about 8:45 o'clock on the night before Christmas, Operater Daniel and Major E. G. Earnhart were playing "old sledge" in their little shanty lookout station near the river. A small colored girl who lived on the plantation rushed into the shack, crying:

"Marse 'Arnhart, yo' an' Marse Daniel better come out hyah! Ah heahs a boat a-comin'."

"Come now, Artie," said the major, shuffling the cards; "you must be dreaming."

"No, sah. Ah heahs it say choo-choo-pat-pat-pat."

By this the girl meant the sounds of the steam escape and the paddle wheels. Earnhart and Daniel went outside and listened intently. The major carried in his mouth the stem of a big meerschaum pipe, which he was puffing placidly. The placidity evanesced, however, when presently there came to the ears of the two Confederates the "choo-choo-pat-pat" which had been caught by the keen ears of little Artie. The men had not heard that sound for months. They ran to the bank of the river and peered far upstream in the darkness. They watched, and in a short time their eyes beheld coming around a bend in the river two miles above the huge black hulk of a steam vessel.

"Gunboat," said Daniel in a whisper, at the same instant snatching the meerschaum from the major's mouth. Some sparks were flying from the pipe. Daniel extinguished the fire under cover.

The men stood still, watching. Shortly the black monster was abreast of them, her engines puffing, her paddle wheels patting the water rhythmically with each downward chug. Back of the first black monster was another and another and yet another. Seven gunboats the men counted, and vessels were coming around the bend seemingly without end. Fifty-nine transports loaded with Uncle Sam's blue-coats they counted. Satisfied at last that there were no more vessels in the fleet, Daniel leaped to the back of the little bay mare he kept close by and dashed for the telegraph station three miles back in the woods. His dear old home, Vicksburg, was imminent peril. It was just after midnight when he reached his instrument.

"I was simply frantic," he said many years later. "It took less than half a minute to call up Fall, who was right on his job, but it seemed hours to me before he responded. 'Golly, old fellow, what's up?' was Fall's greeting." Operators show nervousness on the wire, just as men do speaking orally. Fall knew that Daniel had something startling to tell. The man in the woods swiftly ticked off his news:

"River lined with gunboats and transports—almost a hundred—just passed my lookout—counted seven gunboats and fifty-nine transports chock full of men."

"God bless you, Lee! Goodby. We may never meet again," answered Fall, who made a dash for his skiff.

The night was dark, cloudy, cold and drizzly. The sharp wind tossed the Mississippi's surface into angry whitecaps. The frail craft which Fall was pulling across, right in front of those terrible batteries trained down on the stream, rocked frightfully on the tumultuous current. Fall feared that his red light would go out. That meant that his own side would annihilate him with cannon shot before he could reach the eastern bank.

He did reach there safely and broke up the ball, as related. Up at his end of the line Daniel shortly tried the wire again, but found no battery. Later he learned that the huge flotilla had landed men at several points below and cut down the poles and chopped the wires for a mile.

Methods of Fishing for Men

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.,
Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's)
Church, Chicago.

"Come ye after me," says Jesus, "and I will make you to become fishers of men." Jesus had various methods of soul-winning. He preached to the great multitude. He talked with the individual. In the temple and synagogue he spoke to the godly and religious. He went into the streets, the markets and the lanes proclaiming the gospel to the wicked and irreligious. He opened the gates of heaven that he might entice his people into the Father's house. He opened the gates of hell, that they might see "the fire that is not quenched," and "the worm that dieth not." It was Jesus who did this—not Milton nor any medieval monk. And he did it because love prompted him to be faithful and tell the whole truth. He went into every department of human life from the cooking the meal in the kitchen to the ring on his throne inviting to his son's marriage, that he might get an illustration, a handle by which the people might take hold of the truth. Fact is Needed.

In fishing there must be skillful adaptation. There are fish that you cannot catch singly. They go in schools. They do not bite hooks. If you ever catch fish of that kind, you have to draw the seine around the whole school. There are people like these fish. They are fond of crowds. You can reach that class of people only through the crowd. They are social beings and you must touch them in their social nature.

There are other fish that do not go in schools. Like the brook trout, they live in out-of-the-way places. They are timid and wary. A fly out of season has no attraction for them. The fisherman must keep out of their sight; and if he breaks a stick, he has lost his chance of catching that fish. There are men of this kind. They dislike the crowd. They are timid. They do not like the personal approach. If you go in the open, you will frighten them away. We need the wisdom of God in tactful approach, that we may say just the right word and speak it in the right spirit. Nicodemus could not be reached.

The Heroic Method.
There are others that you must win in more heroic fashion. Saul of Tarsus could never have been won in a quiet way. To have mentioned the act that you wanted him to become a Christian would have led to your arrest. It took the light from heaven, the flash from God; it took the blinding and the dark to bring him to consider and make him pray.

Edward Payson, with his tones of tender love, put some people to sleep. What they needed was a Jonathan Edwards with a thunderbolt against sin in every paragraph. "Gypsy" Smith, with his fascinating gypsiness, had his in the fragrance of the wild flowers and the sweetness of the bird's song in the woods; is very attractive to some; and they are glad to hear the gospel as he preaches it. But there are others (and perhaps no larger number) who need the lightning-bolts of R. A. Torrey and the fiery zeal of Billy Sunday.

Do not fish for trout as you do for sturgeon. Try your trout bait on sturgeon and you will get no fish. Try your sturgeon bait on trout, and you will not fill your basket. So do not criticize the trout fisher because he refuses to use the sturgeon method; and do not criticize the sturgeon fisher because he refuses to use the trout method. "By all means save some."

A Word as to Process.

A word as to process. "Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." If you are not a soul-winner, Christ can make you one. Just transfer the experience of your business to the spiritual realm and see how it works. You are a merchant? "Come ye after me," says Jesus, "and I will make you a merchant of men. I will help you to deal in goods that do not perish with the using—in merchandise better than gold." Are you a carpenter? "Come ye after me, and I will make you a carpenter of men, building structures of character that will outlast marble and granite." Are you a sculptor? "Come ye after me, and I will make you a sculptor of men, chiseling into shape that which will stand after the marble of Phidias has crumbled into dust." Whatever your occupation, let your experiences in that occupation be projected into the fishing for men.

But fishing depends upon more than skill. It depends upon the elements above us; the sun, moon and stars, for some fish can be caught only at low tide.

You can argue with the science of it; but when you go fishing you find that the catching of fish depends upon the wind, weather and tide. Our success in fishing for men depends upon the wind that comes from God, the ideas that are moved by heavenly influences, the atmosphere that comes from Pentecostal prayer and preaching.

Decoration Day.

Saturday May, 30 1908, in Marion was an ideal day, "as bright and beautiful as a May morning."

As had been previously announced the day was to be celebrated at the new cemetery "the silent resting place of the dead" by the friends of those who have gone on before to join that innumerable caravan, to show respect to their memory and to decorate their graves with flowers. Long before the appointed time the people of all ages and walks of life were seen wending their way to the spot, where lie so many cherished hopes, and where the little mound tells the story of some one's darling who is lost to them forever in this world.

A goodly crowd and many flowers were either brought or sent and each mound there, was remembered by some kind hearted friend or stranger. Many moist eyes were there and heaving bosoms, as memories of the past came up, but such a day, such good fellowship and last but not least the splendid condition of the grounds sent everyone away feeling better for the good deeds they had done.

Cemetery Officers Endorsed.

At the new cemetery last Saturday after the decoration ceremonies the lot owners elected the following officers for the ensuing year, H. K. Woods Pres., R. L. Moore, Vice Pres., Miss Nelle Walker, Sec'y.,

Mrs. Cora Crider, Treas.

Directors: T. H. Cochran to fill place of J. F. Dodge, resigned, H. V. Stone, John A. Stone, C. E. Weldon to fill place of H. A. Haynes, resigned.

Played Night Riders.

Mt. Vernon (Ind.) Press.

Probably the following story related by a farmer who was in town Monday represents the extent of the "night rider operations thus far: This farmer states that his nearest neighbor planned to raise a small crop this year for his own consumption only. This farmer is the father of two boys, aged 11 and 13 years, upon whom he was relying to cultivate this crop. The boys did not enter into this part of the program with the best of spirits and planned to scare the "old man." Accordingly, one day they cut a lot of limber switches and that night laid them at the front door of his home. On the door they tacked this sign:

"Old man: If you raise any tobacco this year there will be h—l raised here

"Night Riders"

From a window in the kitchen the father watched the operation of the boys, and when they retired and were fast asleep dreaming of happy days they would spend with rod and line on the creek bank instead of tussling with worms in the tobacco patch he stole into their rooms. In the trousers leg of each he deposited a bunch of the switches and on the seats of their pants was attached the following sign: "Night Riders. Meet me at the barn at 7 o'clock in the morning, when h—l raising will begin.

Old Man,"

The appointment was kept and it caused the mother to devote half a day to patch up the two seats of pants while nature is still at work patching up two other seats. The man who tells this story and who lives not far from town says that the tobacco bed is the pride of the neighborhood.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn boys' growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and pains of this terrible disease. In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfect, dependable prescription. Without this last ingredient, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it is uniformly cured all curable cases of this heretofore unspeakable disease. Those and like granular vesicles, found in Rheumatic blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as surely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes pass away from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer with this help. Jefferson Davis Centenary

JUNE 3, 1808

One Hundred Years Ago
the President of the Confederate States of America
Was Born.

JEFFERSON DAVIS, first and only president of the Confederate States of America, was the most conspicuous figure on the losing side of the most spectacular war in human history. In the eighty-one years of his life entered as much romance, honor, tragedy and pathos as any individual career has known since the world began. Mr. Davis was born June 3, 1808, in Christian county, now Todd county, Ky., and died Dec. 6, 1889, in New Orleans. Eight months after his birth not many miles away in the same state was born Abraham Lincoln, who was to "play opposite" Jefferson Davis during the four years of civil war which made both of them historical personages. Each in his respective sphere served as a helpless target for the darts of vituperation and abuse from those who on the one side or the other held that the war could have been handled better. Practically all through his service as the Confederate president Mr. Davis was charged with incompetency by a Richmond newspaper printed so close to his official chambers that he could almost smell the ink. The vice president of his own government, Alexander H. Stephens, wrote a letter declaring his belief that President Davis aspired to become a dictator and in substance that his object, instead of fighting for independence, was the subversion of human liberty.

As seen through historical perspective fifty years from now, when all the count is made up, when prejudice and passion shall have given place to calmer ship. In 1845 Mr. Davis remarried. Until the battle of Buena Vista there was an estrangement between Davis and his first father-in-law, General Taylor was in command of the army there. After the brilliant success of the V. movement, the old warrior elated Colonel Davis in his arms and sent to the war department a report in praise of the young colonel.

After his return from Mexico Mr. Davis was appointed United States senator by the governor of Mississippi to fill a vacancy. He was unanimously elected when the legislature met. In 1850 he was elected to a full senatorial term, which he resigned the next year to run for governor of his state as the "state rights" candidate. He was defeated by a small vote. Mr. Davis soon returned to Washington, however, being made secretary of war in the cabinet of President Franklin Pierce, a post which he filled from 1853 until 1857 with signal ability. Probably no able war secretary ever held the portfolio.

The Romance, Honor, Tragedy and Pathos In His Remarkable Career as Soldier and Statesman.

Davis urged that the Confederate capital be removed to Richmond, and when this was done he removed thither and took up his residence in the fine old mansion near the statehouse which is now a Confederate museum. In his first message to the provisional congress he made his famous statement as to the attitude of the south, "All we ask is to be let alone," but he promised to resist "subjugation" to the utmost. The world knows what followed. After four years of obstinate and heroic resistance, Jefferson Davis was a fugitive, then a captive, confined for two years in Fortress Monroe, manacled for several days. Indicted on charge of treason, never brought to trial, finally liberated and at length included in the amnesty.

Most of the remaining years of Jefferson Davis were passed in his modest home at Beauvoir, Miss. There he wrote a history of the Confederacy and from time to time made dignified replies to attacks upon his official career. So great was his fame that nobody ever visited that part of Mississippi without going to see the executive leader of "the lost cause." The hospitality of Mr. Davis was unbounded. He entertained in fine southern style all who came. The consequence was that most of the surplus yielded by his plantation was eaten up by American and European admirers, and in his latter years he was in financial straits. Friends devised several benefit schemes, all of which Mr. Davis disapproved. He was content to suffer with the rest of the south, hoping that the royalties on his book would be sufficient to rescue his estate from embarrassment. Even in this he was disappointed, the publishing arrangements proving unsatisfactory.

The human side of Jefferson Davis has been presented by his daughter, judgment, the likelihood is that Jefferson Davis will be regarded as one who did nobly and ably what it was possible and imperative for him to do in a time that tried men's souls. For the present, in connection with the centenary of his birth, it is sufficient to set forth some of the salient features of his career as a man, as a soldier, as a statesman and as a scholar. It is conceded that his service to the United States as soldier, as lawmaker and as cabinet minister were highly creditable. Mr. Davis first went to congress from Mississippi in 1845. John Quincy Adams, the "grand old man" of the house, who had been president of the United States, listened attentively to the first speech of the young Mississippian.

HOME OF JEFFERSON DAVIS AT BEAUVOIR.

"That young man," he said, "is bound to make his mark."
Less than two years later the young man made his mark as a soldier. He had resigned his seat in the house to enter the military service in the war with Mexico, being a West Point graduate. He was elected colonel of the First Mississippi volunteer regiment. In the fierce battle of Buena Vista, though severely wounded, he saved the day by an exploit which won the warm praise of the venerable Duke of Wellington and other noted military men of Europe. That was the famous V movement. Colonel Davis formed his forces in the shape of a V open toward an advancing host of mounted Mexican lancers much superior in numbers. When the lancers rode down into the V, the American riflemen caught them in a withering fire that mowed them down like weeds before a scythe. A few years later Sir Colin Campbell, at Inkerman, V shaped his forces and repulsed a heavy body of Russians, taking his cue from Colonel Davis of Buena Vista.

A dozen years before, when a young lieutenant in the army, Davis had loved and won a daughter of Zachary Taylor, his immediate commander at the time. The marriage was practically an elopement. Mrs. Davis died a few weeks after the event, her husband having resigned from the army and retired to plantation life in Missis-

Mississippi would not let Jefferson Davis rest on his plantation. He was sent back to the United States senate shortly after his retirement from the cabinet. After serving four years of his third fractional term as United States senator he resigned and passed forever out of official connection with the government of the United States. Davis was the Democratic leader of the Thirty-sixth congress. He opposed Stephen A. Douglas' "squatter sovereignty" proposition, but upheld the John C. Calhoun doctrine of the right of the states to secede.

Mississippi seceded on the 9th of January, 1861. Senator Davis was officially notified of this fact on the 24th, and that day he announced his resignation in a notable speech. Davis was an orator of the Ciceroian school. His addresses were literary productions. His arguments were expressed in clear, concise, forceful English, delivered with the austere dignity of an old Roman. His tall, spare form loomed in the senate like the figure of an ascetic who in fasting and solitude had given deep consideration to the questions at issue. In all things he was a serious minded man, almost to solemnity, and totally lacking in that saving sense of humor which upheld his executive antagonist at Washington, the story telling Lincoln. In the years of sore trial. In his farewell speech Davis defended the south in its declaration of withdrawal from the Union, denied the right of coercion and begged pardon of all those whom he might have offended during his senatorial career.

With his military education and service and his long experience as war secretary, Mr. Davis naturally was ambitious to lead the armies of the south. Before reaching his home he had been appointed commander in chief of the army of Mississippi, but on the 9th of February the Confederate congress at Montgomery elected him provisional president of the new government. A year later he was elected president of the Confederate States of America for the full constitutional term of six years. Shortly after taking the executive helm Mr.

"Winnie" Davis, and by many intimate friends, Miss Davis, in a long article written shortly after her father's death, laid particular stress upon his innate kindness of heart. She told how when she was a little girl her father reproved her for stepping on a beetle.

"Is there not room in the world, little daughter, for you and that harmless insect, too?" he said.

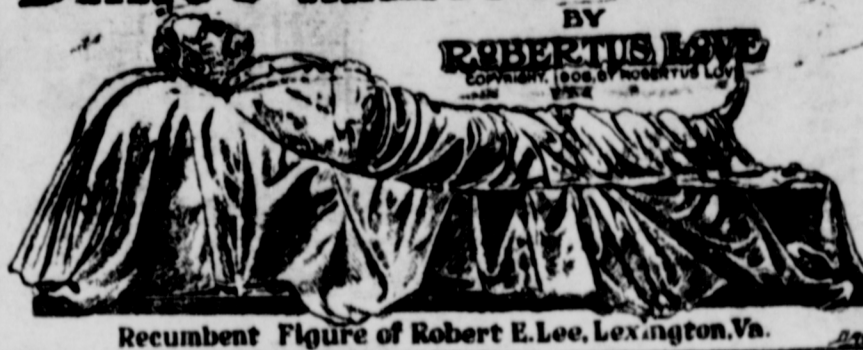

The daughter also related that Mr. Davis' tenderness extended even to trees and plants and that he had been known to tend a bruised shrub long and patiently not because its preservation enhanced the beauty of the landscape, but because he pitied it.

The wide range of knowledge which Mr. Davis possessed was a source of constant wonder to those who had the privilege of hearing him talk. He seemed to be interested in all lines of human endeavor. He loved poetry and music, and he knew good poetry from bad poetry and good music from bad music. His tastes were exalted. He was in all essentials above vulgarity. History, quite naturally, was one of his favorite topics of study. But he did not confine himself to the study of mere human development. All life interested him, as has been indicated, and it is said that once a noted sportsman who believed himself to be an authority on dogs visited Mr. Davis. The venerable man talked dog to his visitor, thereby proving his unfailing courtesy.

"After about an hour," admitted the dog fancier, "Mr. Davis had told me more about dogs, their history, development, uses and racial characteristics than I ever had imagined before."
In person Mr. Davis always was scrupulously neat. It is related that upon one occasion, when he was not feeling well, dinner was announced at his home, and Mrs. Davis urged him to sit at the table in his dressing gown. He declined, though no "company" was present.

ROBERTUS LOVE.

Dixie's Immortal Dead

Recumbent Figure of Robert E. Lee, Lexington, Va.

WHAT deeds were theirs, the soldier dead
Of Dixie, what heroic deeds
Upon a thousand battle meads
That quaked beneath their martial tread!

What hearts were theirs, what hearts of hope
That urged them on to doom's eclipse—
To lie with cold and bloodless lips
On sodden plain or purple slope!

What valor theirs, and all for naught!
What knightly, high devoted souls
Upbore them bravely toward the goals
Where only wreck at last was wrought!

Call Lee's battalions back today,
Their whited phantoms from the past,
And mark the eager heroes massed
And marshaled into lines of gray!

And, hark! Along the moving lines,
The stoutest foeman to appall,
The "rebel yell," the southland's call,
Is thrilling through the aisles of pines!

They ride, as oft they rode in pride,
With Stonewall Jackson in the van.
And here, behold, is Stuart's clan,
And yonder Forrest's rangers ride!

They charge, as once they charged in vain
When peerless Pickett flamed and flashed
Against the heights where cannon crashed
And rifles poured a leaden rain!

Attack! Recoil! Advance! Retreat!
And forward to the fierce assault!
Four years of hell and not a halt—
Four years, and then—defeat, defeat!

Yea, let their ghosts in eerie gray
Stand guard o'er Dixie's broad expanse,
And let the order be "Advance!"
Deny them not this boon today.

For Northron knows, as Southron knew,
That never war's demoniac breath
Hath smitten with immortal death
Men's hearts more valorously true.

Jefferson Davis' Living Daughter.

One child still survives each of the war presidents, Jefferson Davis of the Confederacy and Abraham Lincoln of the Union. Mrs. J. Addison Hayes of Colorado Springs, wife of a banker, is a daughter of Jefferson Davis and the sole remaining member of the Confederate leader's family. Mr. Davis died in 1889 and Mrs. Davis in 1900. Their daughter Varina, more familiarly known as Winnie and celebrated as "the daughter of the Confederacy," died in 1898. All are buried in Richmond, Va.

Lee and Washington.

General Robert E. Lee was indeed fully Washington's equal as a hero and a gentleman and much his superior as a soldier, says the London Times. It is only in the larger political or semipolitical sphere that he stands lower, and there perhaps only because his opportunities were so much smaller.

Cheerful Dave Saddler.

Dave Saddler was a brave Confederate soldier who was in a Richmond hospital and who, in spite of his sufferings, always took a cheerful view of the situation. One day when he was recovering a visiting minister approached his cot and tendered him a pair of homemade socks.

"Accept these," said he. "I only wish the dear woman who knit them could present them to you in person today."
"Thank you very much," said David gravely. "But I have decided that I never shall wear another pair of socks while I live."

The preacher protested, but to no purpose, and finally he sought out the boy's sister to tell her how foolishly the invalid had behaved when he called upon him.

"Why," exclaimed she, "both his feet have been shot off!"

MILK AND KINDNESS.

Think of it—
If you work at the dairy farm of Mrs. Addie F. Howie you must say "Good morning" to her cows.

Eleven years ago Mrs. Howie was a Milwaukee society woman. Now she is the acknowledged authority on Jersey cattle breeding in this country. More than that.

She is on the staff of the Wisconsin Agricultural college as a lecturer, and students of dairy work and stock breeding come from all over the country to attend her lectures. Eleven years ago she was "afraid to look at a cow," as she puts it.

What new thing has this successful woman contributed to the science of cattle breeding? Chiefly this: She employs kindness.

Now, you would scarcely suppose that the yield of a cow's milk could be doubled by kindness? Mrs. Howie has proved that to be true.

She says every stroke of petting, every word of love and every bit of appreciation and attention bestowed on a cow will come back to you in dollars and cents. "Put in affection with your scientific feeding and I promise it will repay you."

For instance:

Mrs. Howie coaxed and caressed twenty-two pounds and five ounces of butter out of Sadie Le Pet, one of her favorites, in seven days. She sells calves for $300 apiece, and they are bespoken before they are born. And her cows take first prizes wherever they are shown.

Of course you must really love your cow if you want to double her yield of milk by kindness. Mrs. Howie is in love with her pretty creatures.

Isn't the woman's theory fine?

And it has its uses.

You may lecture a brutal owner of a cow about being kind to all of God's creatures and it will never get under his skin. But show him that he is cheating himself out of dollars—that's another story.

And by analogy—

If it pays to be kind to a cow, will it not pay to be kind to a horse or a dog—or even a human being?

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of

to conquer all female diseases. Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

"Tears and Love For the Gray"

By DAVID FRANCIS DODGE

Copyright, 1908, by A. B. Lewis

GENERAL STEPHEN D. LEE.

Texas the last Sunday in April, in North Carolina and South Carolina May 10 and in Tennessee the second Friday of May. The birthday of Jefferson Davis, June 3, is known as Confederate Memorial day in Louisiana. The date is particularly interesting this year because on June 3, 1868, just 100 years ago, Mr. Davis was born in Christian county (now Todd county), Ky.

It is a happy comment upon the restoration of the fraternal spirit to be able to say that in many places the Union veterans place flowers upon the graves of blue and gray alike, and this tribute is duplicated by the United Confederate Veterans in many cemeteries where the dead of both sides are buried.

The first "Decoration day" recorded in authentic history was early in 1867, just two years after the close of the war between the states. In the cemetery at Columbus, Miss., the tender-hearted women of that town placed beautiful flowers on the graves of both southern and northern dead. An Ithaca (N. Y.) lawyer, who sometimes wrote excellent verses, but never published them, read of this incident in the newspapers. He was deeply touched. After thinking the matter over he sat down at his desk and penned the lines of the most famous lyric having to do with the civil war. This lawyer-poet, Francis Miles Finch, author of "The Blue and the Gray," died only last year, having enjoyed for forty years the reputation of writing a poem which perhaps more than any other single piece of literary work contributed to the healing of the wounds of war and the reuniting of the two sections in fraternal bonds. He was induced to have the poem published shortly after he wrote it, and at once it "went the rounds" of the press. It was clipped and pasted into many a scrap book now grown sear with age. Those who could not procure printed copies wrote out the lines for preservation. "The Blue and the Gray" goes into all the anthologies and is read and reread with the same appreciation both north and south throughout our united country.

The next year after this poem was printed General John A. Logan, commander in chief of the newly organized Grand Army of the Republic, issued an official order designating May 30 as Memorial day. State by state the north accepted the suggestion, making the day official. The incident at Columbus, Miss., and Mr. Finch's poem, inspired thereby, undoubtedly influenced General Logan in promulgating his order and the states in accepting the suggestion. Thus it may be said that those devoted southern women were the real authors of Memorial day, which in many places is called Decoration day, the name by which it was first known.

Camps of the United Confederate Veterans are scattered all the way from Maryland to Texas. Local organizations of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans are sprinkled over the same wide area. Each Memorial day, whether it be May 30 or an earlier date, hundreds of the veterans of the south march to the cemeteries and observe the beautiful custom of decorating soldiers' graves, while the sons and daughters join the veterans in their noble task, just as in the north the Sons of Veterans and the members of the Woman's Relief corps participate in the G. A. R. ceremonies at the cemeteries.

In recent years many efforts have been made to identify and mark the graves of southern dead who were buried without identification. This task obviously is highly difficult. While some have been identified with the aid of old records, diagrams of burial places and the like, the majority of the unknown dead must remain always unknown. Recognizing this pathetic fact, a few years ago the people of Winchester, Va., a town famous in civil war annals, erected in the local cemetery, where lie the bodies of many soldiers of both the south and the north, a handsome monument bearing this significant inscription:

"None Know Who They Were, but All Know What They Were."

The United States government has done much in recent years toward beautifying southern cemeteries containing the dust of northern dead, such as those at Sharpsburg (Antietam), Arlington and South Mountain. The southern people have done much of this sort of work for their own fallen heroes, funds being raised chiefly by private subscription. In many cemeteries which had been woefully neglected in the terrible stress of reconstruction days a wonderful transformation has been wrought. At Atlanta, for instance, around which city was some of the fiercest fighting of the war, nearly every one of the thousands of Confederate graves has been marked in some way. Several of the finest memorial monuments in the United States are in the Atlanta cemetery.

Thousands of unidentified Confederates were buried at Marietta, Ga. At this late day it is of course impossible to identify them, but all these graves have been marked with blank stones. Each Memorial day the nameless stones are decorated with blossoms.

Every year there is a great gathering in the cemetery at Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy, for the decoration of the graves of famous generals and of unknown soldiers who fell in the ranks.

There is buried gallant "Jeb" Stuart, slain on the field of Yellow Tavern, seven miles distant. He was but thirty-one years of age, and he died a major general, leaving an enduring fame as a great cavalry leader. General George Pickett, who led the splendid but disastrous charge at Gettysburg, perhaps the most famous charge in history, also lies there. Upon a lofty eminence overlooking the James river sleeps Jefferson Davis, soldier, statesman and president of the Confederacy, with his devoted wife and "the Daughter of the Confederacy" beside him. The latter was Miss Winnie Davis, beloved alike both north and south.

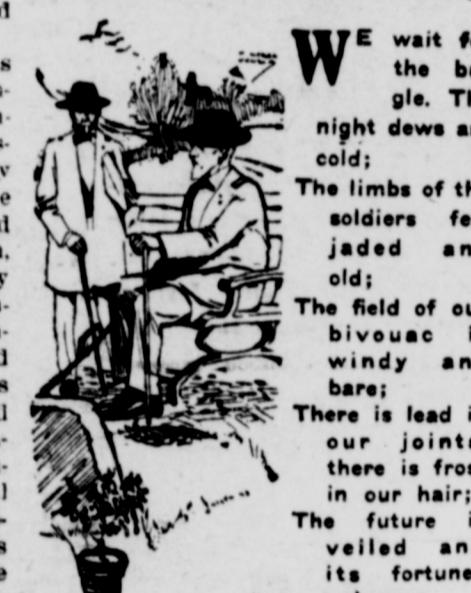

"And on Memorial day," writes Landon Knight in a recent magazine article, "flowers from the hills of Vermont commingle over her grave with those from the plains of Texas and the land of the setting sun as a tribute to her worth and in attestation of a reunited country."

Decorating the nameless graves.

Waiting For the Bugle.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

[Copyright, 1908, by Frank H. Sweet.]

As we lie with hushed breath till the bugle is blown.

At the sound of the bugle each comrade will spring, Like an arrow released from the strain of the string.

The courage, the impulse of youth shall come back To banish the chill of the drear bivouac

And sorrows and losses and cares fade away When that life giving signal proclaims the new day.

Though the bivouac of age may put ice in our veins, And no fiber of steel in our sinew remains;

Though the comrades of yesterday's march are not here And the sunlight seems pale and the branches are sear;

Though the sound of our cheering dies down to a moan, We shall find our lost youth when the bugle is blown.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF AGONY

Will You Continue to Suffer From Catarrh in the Face of This Testimony?

"I suffered for fifteen years with catarrhal troubles so bad that I had to leave the sea. I could not lie down at night to sleep, on account of the constant catarrhal dropping. I went to two different hospitals for treatment, but without any lasting benefit. I was constantly raising yellow and green phlegm, and the trouble was so unbearable and nauseating that I was ashamed to go out in company. I have only used two bottles of Hyomei, and have been cured by the remedy. It has made full and complete recovery."

Capt. Willneff.

Hyomei is a dry, healing, antiseptic air, extracted from the Eucalytus groves of Australia. It is a pleasure to use Hyomei, because you do not take it into the stomach; you simply breathe in this germ-killing air, and relief is immediate, and complete recovery comes in a few days. Hyomei outfit, including an inhaler that that will last a lifetime, costs $1.00. If it does not cure your catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, coughs or cold, Haynes & Taylor will give you your money back.
